

IN SOLIDARITY WITH AUTISTICI/INVENTATI

On August 26, 2026, the United States placed the Italian collective Autistici/Inventati on its terrorism sanctions list, accusing it of providing on-line services to violent groups.

Since 2001 the collective has offered free email, hosting and other tools to activists, and it rejects the accusations entirely. Two days later its website disappeared from the internet – not because the machines were switched off, but because the address that leads people to them stopped working.

May a thousand platforms bloom, may a thousand hacktivist
collectives be born,
may a thousand servers spark up! May the end of A/I produce a myriad infrastructures of dissent as we could never imagine before.

Go forth and multiply, the grasshoppers said! And while you're at it, try and imagine a world of struggle, resistance and self-management the likes of which you have never seen.
